

Ideal weather continues here, a little snow remains and the nights a little crisper. Roads are in splendid shape for this time of the year.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Once more throughout the Christian world the season of Christmas will be celebrated. It is the anniversary of the birth of Christ, "The Prince of Peace". To all of us it means renewed devotion to the Christ, charitable deeds and rejoicing. Let us at this season have a generous heart, a contrite spirit, a concern for the welfare of our fellow men and our own lives shall be filled with joy. I wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Peter Dawson.

Mr. Punch in his Christmas Almanac represents an English family very busy doing up their gifts and intensely anxious that none of the other members should know what was in each parcel. It's the sort of thing we do every day of the year except one—we are afraid someone will know what we are up to except on Christmas Day. On that day we do not care who knows how happy we are, or how much we give ourselves up to enjoyment. Merry Christmas, all because years ago, Life, Light, Love came into the world in the Person of the Son of God Himself. Henceforth, on that day there can be no shame, no humbug, no pretence of being better than we are; should we try it we know that the light of the everlasting Gospel, the First Noel, will find its way in to tell ourselves that we are behind the times and all the same as a Pharisee. And the First Noel the Angel did say to certain poor shepherds in fields as they lay, it was to them that Peace was announced to all men of good will.

The Duties of Citizenship

With daily newspapers in the west publishing talk on secession, the filing of charges that eastern provincial premiers are conspiring to make the central government at Ottawa an annex of their provinces and the promotion of immemorial social, political and economic cuts and "isms" all over the country, the outlook for Dominion unity and stability does not, on the face of it, appear very bright.

Just how seriously these alarms and excursions should be regarded is somewhat difficult to diagnose and what they portend for the future of this country and its people is not easy to decide, but if stress shall which way the wind is blowing, it would appear that the time is drawing near for a spiritual renaissance if Canada is to maintain the solidarity on which it was founded and the happiness and future welfare of her people are to be assured.

Generally speaking, the majority of the people of all parts of this Dominion have expressed a desire, whenever they have been given an opportunity of indicating their views at the polls and through their representatives in Parliament and in the legislatures of the country, to maintain unimpaired and undivided the heritages which have been handed down to them through British history and handed on to them through the fathers of Confederation.

Danger Signs Observed

Sometimes, however, one is tempted to fear that there are signs of a weakening in the faith and courage which dominated the people of this country when it was first settled and which has enabled them to make progress despite the slings and arrows of misfortune and in the face of temporary setbacks and difficulties.

If this is so, then, indeed, there is a need for reinvigorating of that spirit which Sir Anthony Eden referred in his recent broadcast from New York when he announced to this continent that the people of Great Britain come what may, intend to stand firm on the rock of democracy and without calling for outside aid.

That there are differences of opinion, even on questions of major policy, in this country as elsewhere, is to be expected and even encouraged, for of such is the essence of democracy; that such differences of opinion should be brought into the open and thoroughly debated is highly desirable, for that also is the sign manual of the democratic spirit; but once the great majority have spoken their mind, their decision should be respected and observed, at least until such time as minority doctrine may have become espoused by the greater number.

The danger signals hang out, however, when too many people forget that democratic rule entails individual responsibility and that when there is a trend for appreciable numbers to forget or ignore their obligations to the state the risk of the state becoming omnipotent is enhanced and that then the day is dawning when a minority group or an individual may seize the reins of government and impose a dictatorship.

Dangers Impassivity

It has been laid down as axiomatic that the people get the kind of government they deserve. It might be well said that sometimes people are better governed than they deserve and that this is a condition that has lasted long in a day and generation which witnesses a trend for minorities to organize and work day and night to press their objectives, if a substantial section of the general public remains indifferent to its communal duties.

And there are signs of a dangerous trend in this direction when an increasing number of people refrain from exercising their franchise in national, provincial and municipal elections. If people adopt a laissez faire attitude towards their own affairs they should not be surprised if their rights and privileges, including even those privileges of freedom of speech, freedom of worship and freedom of assembly are snatched from them. The attitude of "let George do it," if persisted in, will ultimately result in George doing it and perhaps in a manner which will prove highly distasteful to the great majority.

As suggested what is required for the preservation of a united democracy, which carries with it not only strength to face dangers without, but all those privileges which have been inherited and which should be cherished in view of the price that has been paid for them, is a rejuvenated sense of moral individual obligation.

This can be brought about by an educational program which should be waged not only among the rising generation in the schools and educational institutions of the land, but also among adults who may have been lulled into the false belief that they can ignore the duties of citizenship and still retain the privileges which have come to be taken for granted, even as the air that is breathed and the water that is drunk.

Along with the mechanics of "citizenship," children in the schools and adults outside of them should be reminded incessantly that a lively sense of individual responsibility is essential if the form of government they now enjoy is to be preserved, and that the greater this recognition the more perfect will administration become.

Without a quickening sense of personal responsibility on the part of the people democracy is sooner or later doomed.

Trouble Over Fishing Rights

The Russian foreign office disclosed that a serious dispute has developed between the Soviet and Japan over fishing rights. Leases to Japan for fisheries expired Dec. 31. It was disclosed that Russia—despite angry Japanese demands—refused to renew the leases until Japan makes good a defaulted railroad payment.

Our relations with Mussolini remain cool, says the New Yorker. We refuse to recognize the conquest of Ethiopia and he gives a frosty glare at Pope and Mickey Mouse.

Remember The Birds

A lady has suggested that the plight of the birds at the present time is worthy of attention. It would cost nothing, she pointed out, to scatter some of the crumbs on the snow or hard-frozen earth instead of in the gutter. The children and the birds would benefit. Otherwise, lacking sufficient food, many of them die during the winter.

Something Quite Different

Pedal-Cycle Promises To Become Very Popular In England

As everyone knows, Britain is a land of cyclists and pedestrians and the number of people who take their regular exercise in both manners—and incidentally, see a great deal of their own beautiful country—must run into many thousands.

But the peddle power to supplant the cyclist if advantage could be taken of the sale of Wilfred Pootles is accurate.

For the information of the uninitiated, Wilfred Pootle is the name which the British cycle trade has conferred upon the latest addition to the cycle family—a relatively inexpensive, light, and cheap-to-operate pedal-cycle which does as much as 30 miles an hour and can do 40 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

Wilfred is different. Even if something does happen to his mechanism he is not hard to push or to pedal, and he is so cheap to buy and is so inexpensive to operate that he has made a great hit at the cycle shows. Just think, one of Wilfred's riders can peddle at will through the streets or along the highways at a speed of 20 to 30 miles an hour, and at the cost of such agreeable transportation is not more than a farthing for two miles.

Unless we are mistaken, Wilfred has a future, not only in Britain but probably also in America as well. Although there are but 25,000 peddlers in the United Kingdom before mid-summer, the manufacturers may yet have sufficient facilities to export a few Wilfreds to this country, or, at least, to permit Canadian firms to manufacture Wilfreds under license, and then the peddle will become an international figure.

Who wouldn't be a peddle when peddling covers so much ground at such slight expense?

Farm Placements

Decrease Is Shown In Number Over Previous Year

Improved conditions in Western Canada have produced a decided decrease in the number of persons placed under the government's farm employment plan, said a statement issued by Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of labor.

Figures on farm placement up to Dec. 1st show 9,467 persons—8,293 men and 1,174 women—were placed on farms in Western Canada. These figures compared with 22,461 placements—18,489 men and 3,972 women last year.

By province placements thus far this winter under the farm plan are: Saskatchewan 5,096, Manitoba 2,223, Alberta 2,058 and British Columbia 101.

Charged Ownership Once

Paper Published In Amherstburg, Ont., Was Founded In 1874

The Amherstburg Echo was founded November, 1874, and has a unique history in the way of having had only one change of ownership, and one change of publication premises in all that time. Naturally the paper has changed a great deal to meet the changing conditions of these modern times. The first Echo was four pages—the last ten, and the number of pages now varies from ten to twelve and fourteen, as necessary.

The editorial and reportorial coverage has grown with the paper, while the practical department engages a larger staff than at any time in its history.

Makes No Difference

People Who Sleep Badly Need Not Worry About It

Four recent books have been published to tell one how to sleep. You have to stay awake to read them. As many different theories are advanced as there are books, but only one care that seems worth listening to appears in the lot.

You are to say to yourself: "It doesn't make any difference if I don't go to sleep."

Somewhere this comes the mind. If the sheep racket licked all but low. Any one who has counted sheep and has got as high as ten thousand knows the inefficiency of that one. Shakespeare gave us first the simile of sheep, as knitting up the raveled sleeve of care; scores of poets have craved sleep in verse. It was Stancho Pazzo who famously cried, "God bless the man who first invented sleep."

Now, none of it is important. You needn't count sheep. You needn't read the books. "It doesn't make any difference if you don't go to sleep!"—Providence Journal.

The Speed Of Engines

Railwaymen Claim Steamtrains Have Nothing On Old Locomotives

W. L. Clark, in the Windsor Star, says: "When steamtrains were starting its vague, some railwaymen put their engines in the shops and covered them with paint to give the peasants steamtrains. The idea was to create less wind resistance and give greater speed."

Railwaymen say that the scheme may have impressed some persons, but the old locomotives could tune up as much as any steam engine. The plates as they could with them. High speed engines could scot along at speeds getting on to 100 miles per hour and that will make a fast schedule on any railway.

The Diesel gun in steamtrains, but the ordinary looking locomotive pulls the other trains. Railwaymen like utility and they find that type of engine is the best. They can't without being put into the round house."

RADIO-TELEPHONE FOR SKIERS

This recent picture of Sunning Lodge, near Banff, in the Canadian Rockies, with 10,000-foot Brewster Rock and the Great Divide in the background, shows the mast for the new short-wave radio-telephone system between the lodge and Banff. The new method of communication promises to make the famous skiing district more famous than ever. Sir Charles Gordon Urges United Front for Canadians

BANK OF MONTREAL'S 121ST ANNUAL MEETING

Bankers Review Economic Situation—Loans Show Increase—Hopeful View of Business Outlook Expressed

Deprecating "parochial squabbles" and sectionalism among Canadians, Sir Charles Gordon, G.B.E., at the 121st annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal urged his countrymen to "face with a united front the great on which the hager of destiny is unmistakably pointing."

In his presidential address, reviewing economic conditions during 1928, Sir Charles dealt particularly with Canada's domestic and international relations in the light of the present world situation. He spoke with deep satisfaction of the unity existing between this country and the United States, but deplored the voicing of grievances between Canadians in East and West.

"What," he asked, "are our grievances compared with the tragic strains and stresses from which the European nations are suffering?" Saying that any nation in Europe could make a "noble empire," he commented regretfully, "Yet we belated the vision of this national domain of ours, in which every man can dwell in peace, with room to make him strong by magnifying our growing pains by means of peace and even for political purposes fostering sectional strife and by parochial and provincial views of problems and responsibilities that should be decided on broad national lines."

"Never did we Canadians need to be united among ourselves as we need to be now," he declared, and urged his fellow-countrymen to "relegate our parochial squabbles to their rightfully subordinate place."

Cannot Be Suppressed

World Gets News About Inside Events In Any Nation

The recent expansion of the Rome correspondence of the Chicago Daily News calls attention to the fact that no less than 16 such news have been placed out of the dictatorship of the last couple of years.

No nation like Italy or Germany can really prevent the world from getting a picture of inside events. They couldn't do it if they expelled every foreign news hawk. It couldn't be done in the time of the Great War. As the Ottawa Journal notes, the truth will out. And the more the attempt is made to suppress the truth, the worse for the nation which tries suppression. The cruelties and atrocities against the Jews in Germany could not be kept secret. It is a hundred newspaper columns, and yet the world at large has a pretty accurate idea of what has been happening, even if pictures are lacking because of Nazi police vigilance.—St. Catharines Standard.

Who's Who In The National Hockey League

A new 72-page book is just off the press giving all the information on "who's who" in the National Hockey League. It contains all the records of the league in the past season. The book is recommended by every manager on the seven N.H.L. teams. To get a copy simply send on postage the Hive Syrup label or two 2-cent labels along with it to cover handling and postage, to the St. Lawrence Branch Co. Limited, Port Credit, Ont., along with your name and address and request for Who's Who in the National Hockey League.

Pauson was the first cartoonist of whom there is a record. Aristotle mentioned that Pauson was punished for his caricatures, evidently political in nature, but it is not known whom Pauson satirized.

Business Conditions

Sir Charles, in discussing business in Canada characterized the present year as "not unsatisfactory, having in fact been maintained a fair rate of production and although there has been recession in some cases, this has been offset largely in other directions, with the marked activity of mining contributing in increasingly important measure to the welfare of many subsidiary enterprises from coast to coast."

General Managers' Address

G. W. Spinnery, on behalf of himself and fellow general managers, Jackson Bots, presented one of the strongest financial statements in the bank's history, showing increases in all the important items of the balance sheet, including a growth in loans to Canadian business firms and private individuals during 1928 of over 27 million dollars, with total assets of $25,000,000, the highest since the peak year of 1925.

Speaking of the growth of loans, the general manager observed: "This is a highly satisfactory development. While it is true that the general banking reasons, some requests for loans cannot be granted, every application is carefully studied and none is turned aside without good reasons. Which we are banking on and none is turned aside without good reasons. It was to be made to grant a certain amount of time loans on a standing, but to make one which is contrary to the basic principles of banking, we are banking on the harmony with our idea of the results which we owe to our depositors."

Has Many Advantages

Radio Teletype Device Great Aid To Police Force

Michigan State Police hailed the successful trial of equipment to send and receive printed messages in the perfecting crime-fighting machinery.

Officers said the new equipment was the first in the United States to be developed to such a degree of efficiency.

Advantages of the new system they said are: (1) Criminals have been known to escape capture because they tuned in on police broadcasts. This new system of messages can be received only by special equipment tuned to the proper frequency.

Special markings on the messages instantly available to all State Police and sheriff's offices and the system would permit transmission of more complete records as it would avoid the present system of repeating messages to assure accuracy.

Simplicity. Every receiver tuned to the central transmitter would instantly turn on when the broadcast started, regardless of whether there was an attendant. A message would be received in typed form and the central station would automatically turn off the receiver as the completion of the message in this way every station would be assured reception of the message.

Under the present system operators sit at an electrically operated typewriter and types off the message on a tape. The tape is inserted in the transmitter, which is turned on and automatically completes transmission of the message at a rate of about 50 words a minute. At the receiving end the machine turns on automatically and receives the message in type-written words on other tapes. The receiving device is small and is readily installed in patrol cars.

Empire Unity

Ardent Imperialist Announces Formation Of League

Thos. Fyfe, newspaperman and ardent Imperialist, announced formation of the Empire Unity League, designed to maintain a united Empire and to combat "propaganda" and the decadence of the Empire."

The league is launching an immediate drive for 1,000,000 (£407,000) which will be devoted to building up Empire unity and defence and to issue of counter-propaganda on the strength of the Empire.

Mr. Fyfe, editor of the Empire and Mail and Imperial Review, is director general of the league. He says it is aimed chiefly to meet "malicious propaganda" which he charges the totalitarian states are doing about the decadence of the British Empire and to uphold the principles of democracy.

Japan shipped over 30,000 cases of mandarin oranges to the United States during the last year.

Approximately 4,000 fugitives from justice, in the United States, are detected by fingerprints annually.

For the first time in his life, Jack heard Kay stammer. Then she began to rage, her clenched hands extended, but Jeanne Tovers cut in with:

"Shall I give you the hours, days and dates?" And perhaps you sneak out at nights just for the exercise?" In your pajamas?"

"Jack!" Kay tried again. "Are you going to believe this wretched little liar?" If only.

"He knows," Jeanne cut in, "if you're referring to my life with Lew Stude."

"Kay," the man interrupted dazedly, "has all this been just a game with you?" He was groping, like a man staggering to his feet after an unconsciousness. "You've been just playing me—you never intended to marry me? Just holding me at arm's length—"

"Men are easier to handle than I," Jeanne supplied.

"You should know," Kay was pacing. Her eyes glared; her usually smooth hair was in disarray.

"I couldn't help watching the rest of the picture. They had played on Joe's tactfulness and his dislike for them. Kenning evidently knew his breed; quick disgust, the desire to pull out and go on, once relations had become intolerable. So McKenzie Joe had gone. And Bruce Kenning had continued, surreptitiously, to dig where McKenzie Joe had dug; mining and geological experience had told him that McKenzie was right."

"Don't speak to me! she shot at him. "You've got your own information bureau beside you—talk to her!" And you know it's the right information," Jeanne insisted.

"You've cooked it up—every word of it."

"Then why do you admit it?" The Northern girl advanced a step toward the verandah. "Call out Mrs. Carewe. She's tired of her job; she won't be afraid to answer questions. She'll tell you how many times she's seen you go over to Bruce Kenning's—"

"You've got to be a little more tactful," she said. "I'm going to bed. This time I'd better see him alone."

She begged him to wait for morning. Jack countered with hastily framed excuses. At last he was alone, moving through the shadows toward McKenzie Joe's test shirt, progress ing more by instinct than by direct thought. Mentality had concentrated upon a sequence of events which now were becoming horribly, truthfully clear. McKenzie Joe had been right after all—from the very beginning!

Now the episode of the super gold was explained and the reason that he never again had found such nuggets at Kay's claim. He knew now that her placer workings had been worthless and that they had been salted with metal from Kenning's workings up the creek. It was his ally, her excuse to thwart any idea that Jack might make to give up this quixotic idea, to marry him now, and forget pride and foolish inhibitions. To cover also the matter of money, explain the payment of workmen—Jack knew now who had paid them, Bruce Kenning. To make Jack believe that she was a trifle nearer him, and thus, fevered by her approach, make him the more inaccessible to trickery.

But McKenzie Joe had labeled the first nugget snipe gold; which could not possibly have come from her claim. The mistake had not been made again; the gold with which that gravel had been salted thereafter had been the real gold that would come from gravel, nothing else.

On went the reconstruction of the well-planned, subtle about the English syndicate, the plausibility and sense of honesty established by the failure of the main line of test pits, the surprise of finding gold where no one even Bruce Kenning, had expected it, thus absolutely precluding the possibility of gold-bearing sands in the territory where McKenzie Joe had put his faith.

workings. A faint sound, borne by the brisk wind, carried the rasping of the old ladder as someone began an ascent of the shaft. A shadowy, burly figure appeared. Hammond called Bruce Kenning's name. With that, the figure reached the surface, threw the heavy sack of gravel from his shoulder, drove to run, stumbled, then turned, weakly suppliant.

"Don't hurt me," he begged, "I'm Kenning."

Hammond caught him, lifting him clear of the ground. For an instant, he held the man shaking in his powerful grasp. Then, with a half grin, he gave him freedom.

"I told you never to cross that Alaskan line!" he growled. It was Bruce Stude, almost growling as he drove to back away, to reach a distance from which he could run for safety. But Hammond moved with him, pace for pace. "Fear me?" I told you not to cross that line!"

"But I haven't been bothering Jeanne. Honest to God, I haven't. She doesn't even know I'm in the country."

"What are you doing in this test pit?"

"Just getting out a little gravel."

"To make cement with, I suppose. How long have you worked here?"

"He tried to frame a lie, but he was too frightened."

"Since a night or two after your partner left?"

"And you work for Bruce Kenning. Don't you?" The big hands caught again at the shoulders of the trembling man. "Don't lie—you work for Bruce Kenning."

"Yeh—I work for him."

"You help him salt that dirt over on the bench land too, don't you?"

"I don't know what he did with the gravel I took over there."

"But you did carry gravel for him."

"I've been working for him, ain't I?"

"Where's Kenning now?"

"Lew Stude looked up."

"Ain't he at his house?"

"You know he's not there."

"But I don't. Honest to God, I don't. He said he was going to be there."

Hammond threw the man aside and turned again for the hill. A light was burning in Kay's cottage; he could see her shadow as she paced a window. But strangely, the sight of her held no poignancy for him; instead, there was something of the same disgust which he felt for Lew Stude. Then he went on to the Kenning cabin. It was dark and no answer to his knock. Loosening the leather latch, he walked within, stumbling about the two rooms. Kenning was not there. At last the lights of Whoopee lured him.

An Old Legend

Tells How Wolf Was Discovered By Weary Monk

It is said that felt came to be because of a weary, footsore monk. Back in the days of William the Conqueror, when pilgrimages were in vogue, St. Feuter, tired and footsore, happened to pass a flock of sheep. He plucked a few handfuls of wool from their backs and placed it inside his shoes, praying for a miracle to show that God did not object. Lo and behold, at the end of his journey he removed his shoes and found the miracle! His feet had matted the wool into a new and hitherto unknown material—felt. So goes the old legend.

Wales Has Leaning Tower

The most remarkable known instance of a leaning tower is in Great Britain. This is the tower of Caerphilly Castle, some nine miles north of Cardiff. It is about 75 feet in height and leans 11 feet out of the vertical.

A Chance Experiment

Brought New And Profitable Industry To Cornwall, England

A chance experiment made four years ago has brought a new and profitable industry to Cornwall and extended its cut flower season from three to six months.

Traveling in France in 1924, a Cornish resident was so impressed with the beauty of the giant anemone which grows in abundance even during the winter months that he brought some of the seed of the variety Duo Caen and planted them in his garden in the West Country. They flourished just as profusely in the warm soil and mild Cornish climate as in the Continent.

Growers noted this fact and soon busied were on their way to Covent Garden, London's central flower market, where they proved popular owing to the excellent way they last. The demand increased and increased and so began the new Cornish industry of anemone growing.

"Today anemone farms cluster around Penzance and in the shelter of the spot known as the Cornish coast. In Cornwall alone there are over 1,000 growers, while the acreage under cultivation has increased from 50 to 400 in the last seven years. This year the anemone traffic promises to beat all records.

"At the end of last month, over 40 tons, representing 600,000 blooms, arrived at Paddington Station, London, en route for Covent Garden alone—a 10 per cent. increase over the traffic received on a similar night last year.—From Industrial Britain.

Were Kept Too Busy

Girls Doing War Work In Spain Were Not Scared

A girl who drove a hospital truck in the Spanish civil war and another who served as a nurse at the front lines said that "most of the time they were too busy to be scared."

Ruth Davison, 27, and Evelyn Robinson, 28, of New York, who volunteered to the medical bureau to aid Spanish democracy worked for weeks in sight and sound of the firing in government territory.

Evelyn drove a three-ton truck over roads sometimes shell-torn to bring fuel and medical supplies to the hospital base. There were only two other girl drivers, she said. For 2½ months after arriving in Spain, she drove an ambulance—15,000 miles.

Ruth, who worked six months giving anesthesia in a "hospital on wheels" at the Cordoba front, later was sent to the Ebro front. She could see the firing from the hospital tents pitched around a little white house in a field. Sometimes artillery shots fell nearby; and two days after they evacuated if the building was destroyed.

The girls were in Spain nearly 10 months.

A Costly Business

Running A Newspaper Has Become Quite A Problem

Since June, 1937, no fewer than 41 daily newspapers in the United States have suspended publication, some by merger and six by reverting to weekly publication. The reason, stated the Niagara Falls Review, is practically all causes has been the same, continually mounting cost of publication.

It is a far cry from the day when a newspaper could be started with relatively little capital. Probably no business in the world has become as costly as newspaper production and to-day readers get far more for their money than ever before.

It is amazing to contrast newspapers of to-day with those of 20 or even 10 years ago.

In three or four days $500,000 was raised in England for the Czechs.

Bequest Has Been Lost

Will Stated 41 Years Ago As Mentions Fleet Of Ships

A will lost 41 years ago has just turned up, but, unfortunately, a whole fleet of vessels bequeathed in the will is still lost, and no comes to light a most unusual bequest.

The story of a last testament stolen from the testator's death bed is revealed in a letter from Lake Gattineau, Quebec County, to the Brock Shipping Company, Montreal.

The letter reads in part: "I have found a last will that had been robbed from the death bed of my grandfather, Charles Alexandre Dubuc, in date of Dec. 1897. Grandfather died that same year, and the will was found on Nov. 10, 1938."

"For your own reference, to help in search to discover data for me, I will copy for you the following paragraph from a document that was registered at the Superior Court of Quebec:

"Charles Alexandre Dubuc emigrated to Canada as a wine merchant. He is the owner of the French White Fleet ships, and he traded most of them to the Canadian Government, and was exempted from tax, and waterfront rights for docks. It was near (St.) Montmorency Falls that he came with King, Hall, et al., having the docks for the ships, etc."

"I will be rewarded if you can help me in one way or another. Hoping to hear from you soon."

"Paul Dubuc."

No one could be found in Montreal who had heard of the fleet, but the shipping company is still searching.

Maybe There Are More

But Canals Definitely Has Two Women Bell-Ringers

There is more than one female bell-ringer in Canada, a fact revealed when Paris suggested the young woman who rings the bell there was probably the only one of her sex to do this work in the Dominion. Undoubtedly the oldest person in the class lives in Ottaville, Ont.

Mrs. Ruth Elliott, who recently passed her 81st birthday, has rung the bell at Ottaville nearly all her life. She was born just across the street from the bell tower and while still in her teens commenced ringing the bell, and with few exceptions when other members of the Hillier family relieved her, she has been doing a grand job for more than 60 years.

"I only have to ring it five times a day now," she said. "I used to ring it six times when we had the curfew." When it was suggested that it would still be a good idea to ring the 9 o'clock bell, she said, "No, it wouldn't do a bit of good, the children never pay any attention to it anyway."

If a strange hand rings the bell, the villagers all know it, for she has acquired a technique at the job. When the fire alarm is given, Mrs. Elliott rings the bell as a separate ruse outside the belfry is used for this purpose.

On Sunday, Mrs. Elliott gets a little rest for the bell is rung but once that day at 9:30 in the morning, and frequently her son, Charles, who is home from work, rings it then.

The Cost Of Victory

Italian People Paying Plenty For Conquest Of Ethiopia

Great Britain has "recognized" the conquest of Ethiopia. Fortunately British taxpayers are not compelled to recognize this conquest and all who will be paid by the Italian people.

Mussolini's edict of a 7.5 per cent. tax on the profits of the war is the most revealing news out of the dictator state recently. The money is to be used developing Ethiopia. A similar tax of 10 per cent. was levied last year.

Ethiopia will have cost Italy 17.5 per cent. of capital stock and real estate, plus the cost of the Ethiopian campaign, plus incidental money. It has been said to find. The two taxes amount to $175,000,000. A tremendous investment for a doubtful return.—Chatham News.

Charges That Japanese Are Spurring Narcotics Traffic In Nanking

Charges that the Japanese are sponsoring the narcotics traffic in Nanking were made by Dr. M. S. Bates, American educator connected with the University of Nanking, in a report supplied to the New York press.

The report says 50,000 persons, one-eighth of the population of Nanking, are being slowly poisoned by heroin supplied by Japanese-controlled sources, on a statement of dealers in narcotics and on regulations of the Chinese puppet administration in Nanking. Dr. Bates, who is a Professor of History of high reputation, has made a number of other reports on Nanking conditions, including a statement on Japanese atrocities in Nanking last December.

His estimate of 50,000 including children, crippled by the heroin habit, does not include thousands more addicted to opium and other narcotics.

He said the strongest of the four trafficking organizations in Nanking was directed by the special service section of the Japanese Army. The puppet government was said to be profiting immensely.

"There is abundant testimony that the major output of heroin from Dairen through Shanghai," the report continues.

COLLEGIATE NEWS AND VIEWS

The public and high schools are putting the finishing touches on the plays and songs for the concert being held tonight.

We wonder why Betty falls at the feet of a man on main street. It isn't time to celebrate yet, Betty.

Room 1 in the High school was the scene of considerable excitement Tuesday afternoon. Everyone was in suspense when they heard the sleigh bells, and Santa Claus was received with shouts of glee. After giving out the many gifts Santa departed with more ringing of bells.

We are beginning to wonder if there will be a change in the teaching staff after Christmas. We hear Mr. Lindstedt is taking over the primary class.
